Friday Notes

Friday, September 28, 2012

Principal's Corner

Our musicians were out and about this week! On Tuesday, Michael Davis performed an improv jazz solo and on Thursday, Maddy Richmond performed "The Magic Flute." Both students shared their talents in front of over 250 students and faculty members. Way to go! West Side would also like to congratulate our newest Student Council representatives, who were announced on Monday. Congratulations, everyone!

This week second graders learned about rural communities in Social Studies and continued to add to their Word Walls. Third grade students collected small moments, shopped for books in their classroom libraries, and carried out their class jobs. They also studied couplets in poetry and rhyming pairs, and in Ms. Santoro's class, students made apple sauce in honor of Johnny Appleseed's birthday! Meanwhile, in fourth grade, parents and grandparents came in to help decorate Writer's Notebooks and brainstormed possible topics for our students to write about in their personal narratives. Fifth grade students reflected on how they meet their reading goals, discussed strategies for when they encounter words they do not know, and engaged in whole class discussions about homophones. Finally, sixth graders used quotes to support their writing, explored the importance of using topic sentences in their essays, and were involved in discussions about the childhood of author, Gary Paulsen.
